[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Nov. 21.—The German fleet as specified in the terms of armistice was surrendered today to the allies.
This was made official by the Admiralty at 9:30 o'clock this morning.

The British Grand Fleet, accompanied by an American battle squadron and French cruisers, stood off at 10 o'clock this morning from its Scottish base to accept the surrender of the German battleships, battle cruisers, cruisers and destroyers. A wireless dispatch this noon reports that they were in touch with the German ships and that the surrender is being carried out according to plan.

The point of the rendezvous for the Allied and German sea forces was between 50 and 40 miles east of May Island, opposite the Firth of Forth.

Washington.—An American battle squadron probably including five dreadnaughts, commanded by rear Admiral Hugh Rodman and operating as a unit of the British grand fleet, participated in the passing of the German sea power.

The Americans shared in the formal acceptance by Admiral Beatty, first British sea lord, of the surrender of the German fleet. The German ships were designated in the terms of armistice.
The identity of American naval craft in European waters has never been disclosed.

Fog Clears
The fog which had enveloped the Grand fleet for three days cleared last night and this morning a slight haze hung over the Firth of Forth.

The fleet, which witnesses the surrender, consists of some 400 ships, including sixty dreadnaughts and fifty light cruisers and nearly 200 destroyers. Admiral David Beatty commands
the Grand fleet in the Queen Elizabeth.

On board a British cruiser, Nov. 21.
Twenty German submarines at the head of the German fleet to surrender, were taken by British ships. The transfer was made silently and without incident.

The crews sullenly obeyed the orders which had been given them and tonight the U-boats lay moored under the British flag near a British submarine base.

During the ceremony of surrender
American seaplanes flew low overhead while American submarine chasers carried British crews to the underground boats.

From the time the leading submarine at the head of the long line was sighted by the British squadron of light cruisers and destroyers, there was not a word of resistance.

The scene then began about sunrise, when the first submarine was sighted until late this evening, when the last one was rounded up, might have easily been mistaken for fleet maneuvers. The work was carried out with such precision that there were few signs of momentous significance of it all.

When the first British officers stepped aboard they quickly sailed. British sailors followed the officers and went to examine the first ship to be taken over. The German commander answered questions regarding his machinery, but said nothing else.

The machinery was generally in good shape, but the vessels were extremely dirty and devoid of all uncessentials. Everything indicating the presence of the craft had been removed, although the Germans, conforming to instructions, readily told the names of their boats.

The German fleet was divided in five divisions. In addition to the seaplanes the swept low above the enemy craft, dirigibles kept company with the fleet. Ten miles from Harwick the fleet was met by more British ships, which carried crews from British submarines. These men divided into parties of 14 each, and each transferred by American submarine chasers to the U-boats where a British officer quickly took command.

The first submarine boat flew low and it seemed a long time to the British sailors on the other vessels before the flag appeared. Finally, however, the flag was broken out, and even this last signal of total submission by Germany did not cause the British sailors to disobey the order of silence, but the expression in the eyes of the officers of the fleet betrayed their satisfaction as each U-boat displayed the colors.

At last the newly flagged submarines were brought to anchor at Harwick.

TAKE FINAL STEPS AS TO CENSORSHIP

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Nov. 21.—Final steps toward abandoning censorship restrictions on publication of movements of commercial shipping were taken today by the navy department. Port authorities were notified that ship news reporters might hereafter board in coming vessels as in peace times and the treasury department was advised that only movements of war vessels, transports and supply vessels directly under naval jurisdiction need be withheld from publication for the present.

BUILDING WAREHOUSES

Large Warehouses and Ten Steamer
Berths Constructed by Yankee Engineers at Bordeaux.

American Headquarters in France,
Nov. 19.—A part of America's military effort in France at the time the armistice was declared is shown by statistics which the Associated Press is now permitted to make public.

On November 11 the United States in France 13,491 officers and 1, 881,376 men.

Man power alone however, was but one factor, behind it lay vast machinery which was required in operations.
Railways and motor roads were constructed and across the sea were brought locomotives, cars, rails and motor transport of every kind.

Requisite Article
Behind this again was the requisite food, clothing and general supplies for the men as well as dockage and warehouse constructions. Every effort of civil life, plus the requirements
showing what has been accomplished
has in operation 799 standard gauge locomotives and 13,174 standard gauge freight cars of American manufacture.

In addition it has in service 350 locomotives and 973 cars of foreign origin.
Eight hundred and forty-three miles of standard gauge railway were constructed. Five hundred miles of this have been built since June 1. One hundred and fifteen miles of road and 140 miles of German light railways were repaired and put in operation.
Two hundred and twenty-five miles of French railway were operated by the Americans.

Approximate Figures
There were in operation Nov. 11, more than 53,000 motor vehicles of all descriptions. The Associated Press is allowed to give approximate figures
showing what has been accomplished
in the accumulation of food supplies.

In army terms, one ration represents the quantity of each article of each man is entitled to daily. The Americans have 390,000,000 rations of beans alone, 183,000,000 rations of flour and four substantial rations of meat, 500,000,000 rations of rice, hominy and other foods.

Warehouses
In the construction in improvement of dockage and warehouses, ten steamer berths have been built at Bordeaux having a total length of 4,100 feet. At Montoir, near St. Nazaire eight berths are under construction, with a total length of over 3,200 feet. These, however, do not indicate the magnitude of the engineering corps.

ACTION OF WILSON CRITICIZED BY SENATOR

Washington, Nov. 21.—The action of President Wilson in taking marine cable lines under government control was criticized in the senate today by Senator Kellogg, of Minnesota, Republican, who declared it was part of a plan to establish permanent government ownership of telegraph, telephone and cable wires.

Senator Lewis Active.
Immediately after Senator Kellogg's attack Senator Lewis of Illinois, Democrat, who aided a resolution proposing permanent government ownership of telegraphs, telephones, ships and railroads and other public utilities.

Not a Necessity.
"It demonstrates beyond all question that there never was a war necessity," Senator Kellogg said, of the taking over of the cables, "and in my opinion it is part of a plan to fasten on this country government ownership of telegraph, telephone and cable lines."

Washington.—Senator Watson of Indiana, republican in a speech attacking the president for taking over cable and express lines suggested that the cables were taken to suppress

KOLSCHAK DICTATOR OF ARMIES

REAR ADMIRAL HAS VIRTUALLY
BECOME DICTATOR OF ALL RUSSIAN ARMIES.

ABOLISH DIRECTORATE

General Horvath States That It Was Found Advisable To Abolish
The Directorate.

Washington, Nov. 21.—News of the coup at Omsk by which Admiral Kolschak virtually has become dictator of all the Russian armies is regarded at the State Department as another sign pointing to stabilization of the movement relied upon to regenerate Russia.

Situation in Siberia
The great weakness in the situation in Siberia is that which Admiral Kolschak has been looking for some time, it lacked some powerful head of the government who cannot be swayed by popular demonstrations and who will work toward the reconstruction of the government with a firm hand. Admiral Kolschak is thought to be a man who will not misuse his authority and whose hostility toward the Bolshevik elements which have led to the disruption of the country is strong.

Counter Measures
Vladivostok.—The activities of the Bolsheviks in the Far East are progressing rapidly. The 15th, 22nd, 23rd and 25th divisions have been withdrawn from the front and now are in retreat. The 33rd, 34th, 35th and 36th divisions are marching to the rear areas. It is understood that the 77th division will be moved to a rest camp
in Southern Siberia.

The 31st, 32nd, 33rd and 34th divisions have been formed into the seventh army corps and will remain temporarily in their old positions.

Directorate Abolished
"The government in the fact of this accomplished fact," Gen Horvath explained, found it advisable to declare the directorate abolished and to replace temporarily the superior authority to a supreme government whose power is limited by the council of ministers. In other words, there is mutual responsibility."

rewas quoted as saying, "by orien-

WORTENDYKE HEADS RED CROSS WORKERS

ELECTED AT MEETING OF DIRECTORS HELD WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

ANNUAL GATHERING

Amount of Work Accomplished by the Organization is Most Remarkable.

Big business was represented in the program of the year's work presented by the various officials of the Red Cross at the annual meeting of this organization held at the Court House on yesterday afternoon. With a revenue of one hundred and five thousand dollars in dues alone in Rock county, the amounts handled in funds and in products turned into headquarters is something to be proud of.

In a resume of the National organization read by Mr. Wortendyke it was shown that this organization had raised funds approximately in value in the United States made about three hundred and twenty-five million dollars worth. That about one-fourth of the population of the nation belonged to the membership, and that eight hundred thousand were working in its workshops, producing 221 million garments.

Five thousand Red Cross workers who were active in the service department about 100,000 families were being taken care of.

Coming down to local conditions, Mr. Wortendyke reported that the funds handled by the local chapter was the amount of $55,593.31. Of this sum, $445 had been expended for relief work, and $175 for the canteen, which supplied next cards and smoke to the troops passing through the city.

Attention was called to the change of name of the chapter from that of the Janesville Chapter to that of Rock County. This change was made in September, when the work was reorganized.

Detailed reports of the work of the different committees were given by the chairman of the same. Miss Sarah Richardson giving that of the hospital supplies committee. She reported that in their hospital garments for the year beginning November 1st, 1217 to October 31st, they had been made and turned in 13,525 garments. The shipment of hospital garments since they had been standardized included 5,200 garments. The total of standardized garments for the year was 32,757. And for the 21 months which the work room had been in operation, the number of garments sent in included 39,150.

350 hospital garments had been sent to Rockford during the recent outbreak of influenza, as well as 25 dozen handkerchiefs and 100 pairs of socks. A box of quilts and other articles to the number of 1,253 was shipped early in October of last year about the time the work was standardized.

She reported that a new quota of 100 dress shirts was about completed, that 200 suits of winter pajamas were ready to send out, and that a quota of 175 small boys for tailing coats was at the time being received. The quota of work sent from the several branches was also itemized.

Mrs. Wm. Bosworth gave a detailed account of the beginning of the work in surgical dressings, which she said had been in operation just a year. She said that about eighty ladies had taken the complete course in surgical work, and that nearly as many more had taken the preliminary course. The kinds of dressings required. Of these there were 47 kinds of dressings, about equally divided with the gauze, pads and bandages. The average cost of the dressings was 10 cents. The work was from 25 to 55 ladies, while a remarkable attendance of one hundred young ladies had been common at the evening class held once a week.

Approximately 100,000 dressings had been shipped from the local work room during the past year, and of these large numbers had been contributed by Evansville, Edgerton, Milton and Milton Junction. It had been expected to open the room in October when the influenza stopped operations, and last week when all work from headquarters for them to discontinue work for the present. Acknowledgment was made by her to Miss Carl for daily furnishings for the work room, to Miss Kegan for illuminated verses for the walls, and to other donors for a flag, a Red Cross banner, and for the loan of a desk.

She also described the quick work accomplished, when an emergency call came from Rockford, for assistance, and 60 pneumonia jackets and 500 yards of gauze was gotten off at short notice for the relief of their sick.

Mrs. Geo. Parker in an itemized report, showed that 12,568 knitted articles had been sent in to headquarters. Of these 12,000 of these the branches had made 7,743 in Janesville, 4,803.

Of these there had been 2,821 sweaters, 5,701 pairs of socks, 355 scarves, 75 pairs of mittens, and 892 pairs of wristlets. Janesville has 1022 knitters on the lists. Money to the sum of $5,801.22 had been expended, and 3,841 pounds of yarn had been purchased. Mrs. Hayes and Mrs.

McManus had been the expert knitters who had taught the work in the room. Mrs. Chas. Pfaff and Mrs. H. H. McCoy had been in attendance receiving work at the room.

Mrs. A. C. Hough gave a report of the Comfort Bureau work of which she had filled 800 Christmas packages last year, each one containing about 15 articles, and the whole costing about $841.97.

They had made 133 Comfort Bags in June and a quota was given to them of 320 bags, and of these the branches each made 20 except Evansville, Edgerton and Janesville, who each made 30.

In September another quota of 330 making 78 bags, and the Johnsons and Rock Prairie making 40. At present this committee and busy weighing and stamping the Christmas packages, having completed up to date, 167 of them.

Miss Josephine Carl gave a report of the Home Service work of which she had filled 800 Christmas packages last year, each one containing about 15 articles, and the whole costing about $841.97.

Oscar Malmgren Owner of Rockford Taxi System Is Owner of Car Which Struck Hartwell Todd.

Oscar Malmgren, 1515 South Fifth street, Rockford, is the owner of the car which struck the telephone car of Mr. Todd on Monday, nearly killing Mr. Todd.

Malmgren who is owner of a taxi system in Rockford, told Chief Champion over the telephone yesterday that he owned the car but it was being driven by Bert Thomas at the time of the accident.

Mr. Todd immediately attached the car for five hundred dollars and the car is being held awaiting the arrival of Mr. Malmgren from Rockford. It is expected that he will arrive in the city this afternoon.

RACINE WOMEN WANT POLICEMAN ON FORCE

Racine.—Members of the Racine Women's club declared their intention to compel the common council to appoint three policemen for the city. The police department is inadequate to cope with immorality.

A short time ago the Women's club petitioned the common council to appoint three policemen, but the petition was filed. When the members of the club learned of the council's action they at once prepared petitions for circulation throughout the city. The petition reads as follows:

"To the Mayor and Common Council: Whereas, owing to the increasing problems of juvenile delinquency in our city, as evidenced by experience of public and private agencies and testimony of thoughtful citizens living in the neighborhood of our public parks and business districts, we the undersigned being residents of the city of Racine, petition your honorable body to appoint three policemen, whose duty it shall be to protect moral life of the youth of our city, through adequate enforcement of the existing laws and ordinances."

Officials also point to the fact that there are the central association of Big Sisters and a woman probation officer who can make investigations with their assistants, and protect the girls and boys.

Officials declared that conditions here do not necessitate appointment of policemen as the morals in Racine is equal to any in the State, and if charges are true that girls are being taken into saloons and other places it is the duty of the persons making these facts to make complaints.

Attention, Moose: All members are asked to attend the stag party, supper and installation of officers tonight, Moose hall, eight o'clock.

COUSINS TAKEN INTO CUSTODY FOR THEFT

Fred and Edward Martin Arrested by Chief Champion For Stealing Auto Robe and Three Pairs of Shoes.

Fred and Edward (Martin) Soaters they are called by the police, were taken into custody yesterday afternoon on charges of stealing merchandise. Both the men claim they have been working at the Rock Island Arsenal and also claim they are cousins. Fred was charged with stealing three pairs of shoes from the Janesville Dry Goods company on South River street. One pair of the shoes have been returned to the store, but the other two have not been found.

Edward was taken into custody for stealing a robe from an auto in the rear of the St. Paul station. The robe is valued at five dollars.

Chief Champion received word that two erstwhile tough guys were in the Bishop saloon trying to impress on the patrons how tough they were. Several of the patrons resented the method and a fight ensued. It was a lively place for several minutes but Chief Champion soon stopped the fight and took the two tough men to the station.

After questioning them Chief Champion was of the opinion that the city would be better off if they were out of town. He gave them a choice to go to the city hall or to the Milwaukee, but they were not satisfied and thought that it would be easy picking to pull a few stunts before they left.

The result both of them were arrested for stealing and are being held at the station. They will be taken into court as soon as District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie returns from Beloit.

Edgerton News

Edgerton, Nov. 21.—Eric Daliman committed suicide by hanging himself in the city jail here yesterday afternoon shortly before noon, by using his leather belt to hang himself with. The body was discovered shortly before noon by Officer Gilbertson who went to the jail to see if Daliman wanted anything for dinner. Officer Hull had been at the jail at eleven o'clock and at that time Daliman was all right so he had taken his life between the hours mentioned when Officer Gilbertson went to Stoughton is not known but probably some time Tuesday. In the evening people who were passing the railroad bridge discovered him in the jail and he was removed to the hospital where he was given medical attention. Later in the night he was removed to the city jail because of the disturbance he was making at the hospital. Early in the week Daliman was seen at Janesville in an intoxicated condition and on Monday he was seen at Stoughton by Edgerton parties in the same condition. After his liquor had worn off and his inability to secure more it is thought to have been responsible for his taking his own life. The funeral will be held in the city.

The cafeteria supper given at the Congregational church last evening for the benefit of the city of Stoughton was attended and the proceeds will materially swell their funds.

BROTHERHOOD HELD INTERESTING MEETING

An interesting talk on the unique experiences of a Y. M. C. A. worker in the Austrian prison camps was given last evening by Secretary Donaldson of the Camp Grant, before the members of the Methodist Brotherhood. It was a tale thrilling in its intense human interest and touched with the orchestra of feelings which makes all mankind of kindred race. For more than a year, sent from one camp to another and allowed to minister to the prisoners, he had a wealth of personal stories to relate in regard to the war, and especially from the prisoners' point of view. He said there was a strange mixture from all the foreign peoples in these camps—Slovaks, Russians, Rumanians, Serbians, Croatsians, Tartars, Jews and many other races. Queer experiences in obtaining food for them through the medium of the Red Cross, were related, and many trips that he made to Vienna, and the miscellaneous things he picked up there to minister to the comfort of the wretched inmates of the camps was described. One time numbers of gypsies were in a camp and they longed for music, so that in one of his trips he was able to secure violins, and they fitted up an orchestra of gypsies, which made them supremely happy.

Food was scarce, and it was only by securing packets of food through the medium of the Red Cross that many of the prisoners were enabled to live. Living conditions in some of the camps were intolerable and in one where the Serbians were confined, the dampness and cold killed off most of the men. The Serbians had suffered much from the war, their numbers being reduced from seven million inhabitants to about half that number.

His experiences were interesting and he held the close attention of his hearers for an hour. He was introduced to the members by E. P. Hocking, who accompanied him to Janesville.

Several musical numbers were rendered by the Men's Chorus, who sang "Sail On" and "Sometime, Somewhere."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

November 18, 1918.

To the Janesville Gazette:

As your paper apparently upholds freedom of press it would indeed be gratifying and even a pleasure to have you publish the following which is directed to those who are doing concern in Evansville and vicinity.

Having heard through more sources than one of the barbarous manner in which the people of Evansville exhibited their exultations when peace was proclaimed, I am behooved to express myself through the press.

Surely only those who are familiar with the conditions and discomforts under which thousands of war workers have been living or shall I say existing in Washington can appreciate with what degree of earnestness and enthusiasm we responded to express our sentiments here which meant freedom for our Nation and Home for our boys; yet we did it as thoroughbred Americans. We did not find it necessary to destroy property or show irreverence to old make and a flag for which we stand, neither did we express an attitude so corrupt as to make us appear but little higher than those we have just succeeded in choking.

True patriotism is everyday Loyalty and means more than an occasional band and fire works. While you were expressing your patriotism by the noise you could make and a spirit that was as frivolous as laughter and fragile as smoke, most of whom when you are gone a tombstone will be the only evidence of your existence, I am sure that many other girls were spending our days giving of the best there is in us to Uncle Sam with only the gratification that we are taking an active part in the great struggle.

Some times working far into the night on all day doing volunteer work in the Government Flu Hospital and private homes.

There is done not without some little risk to the safety of our own lives being thrown in with seven or eight hundred patients in one building and are the new cases registered as high as four thousand. Those who stay every for a single day, still it was a source of satisfaction with which we were endeavoring in some small way to aid in the war.

Let me ask please, are not my parents giving us willingly and making as big a sacrifice as those who have offered a boy for the front, and yet because they are not (like some) exhausting themselves and others by talking about it of placing themselves on a committee and going around telling others how much and what they must give; are they any less true Americans?

Some people are afflicted with a diarrhea to get sensational things and a constipation when it comes to doing the little personal services which really count.

There are those who show their sympathy by ill and suffering by making dutiful call and leaving a few carnations while the patient really needs is a drink of cool water and a few wrinkles pressed out of the bed.

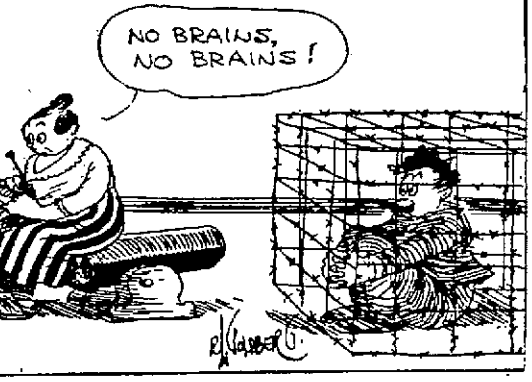

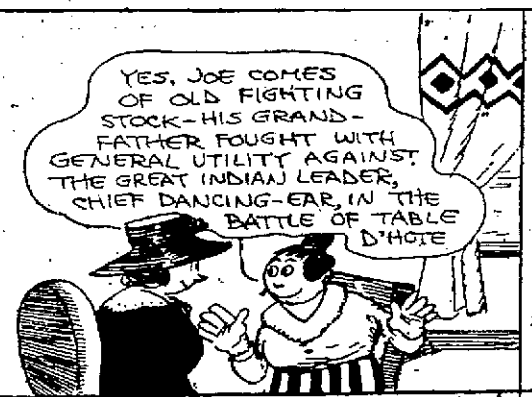

And there are those who consider one's friendship only to the extent or measure of what they can get out of them and when the time comes that they are no longer in a condition or able to do, their friendship subsides.

There are also those that are so momentarily enthusiastic with the spirit of today that they are blinded and numb to the consideration of a humble parent who has been quietly laid aside on a shelf in the almshouse to spend their old age in thinking of the ingratitude of their children to whom they have given their lives; and there are the ones who are setting themselves up as an example to criticize and judge others.

I thank God I have not parents like any of these, and I am proud to say that I can claim a father who possesses the quite unusual and finer instincts of a gentleman toward the uplift of moral civilization, who in not like many with whom he comes in contact, wearing the mask of a church creed or a coat of polished veneer to cover up some hoped-to-be forgotten past and practices no pretense means in trying to establish himself in the good graces of mankind.

If by any chance there remains a spark of humanity in your nature after being swayed by so common a mass of human clay, not strong enough to resent public opinion regarding what is your own hearts. If you are right; you will immediately take steps to right a wrong, and aspire to higher and nobler things.

NO BRAINS, NO BRAINS!

I regret very deeply that I feel obliged to express myself so forcibly and those who know me well enough know that it is not my temperament to intentionally do or say things to offend anyone. I should not like to think but that all that has occurred has been done through some big misunderstanding.

I believe, I can not better sum up and close this discourse than by quoting the first and last stanza of Rudyard Kipling's "If," which expresses my sentiments so completely.

"If you can keep your head when all about you
Are losing theirs and blaming it on you,
If you can trust yourself when all men
Doubt you,
But make allowance for their doubting too;
If you can wait and not be tired of waiting,
Or being lied about, don't deal in lies,
Or being hated, don't give way to hating,
And yet don't look too good, not talk too wise;

For this purpose, was our entire output requested and given. The purpose accomplished—and full supplies of "BULL" DURHAM guaranteed for the future—the Government has released the remaining part of the "Makings of a Nation" for civilian consumption.

ARRANGEMENTS BEING MADE FOR MONSTER COMMUNITY THANKSGIVING SERVICE TO BE HELD NEXT THURSDAY

Rev. Clarke W. Cummings Chairman of Committee in Charge—Proclamation Issued by Mayor and J. P. Cullen.

In accordance with the proclamation issued by President Wilson, a community Thanksgiving service will be held in this city next Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Congregational church.

COMMUNITY THANKSGIVING SERVICE

Janesville this year has special cause to be grateful and to hail Thanksgiving Day with an intense joy. Victory has been brought to Janesville—not peace alone, but an abiding prosperity.

Our troops have gained immortal glory on the fields of battle. America's part in the war has been notable.

America of all countries engaged in the mighty struggle is the least humbled. Therefore, Thanksgiving Day 1918, should be commemorated by all people in humble reverence and Thanksgiving to God for his divine mercy and providence.

Janesville cannot more fittingly celebrate the day than by joining in a Community Thanksgiving service. We, therefore, urge all the people of Janesville to take part in such a service.

Chas. L. Valentine, Mayor.

service. The program has not yet been completed but will be announced in a few days.

Rev. Cummings stated that it is the desire of the committee to have the people of all the churches who have gone to the front to attend the services, and also request that the many civic organizations in the city attend in a body.

Joint celebration numbers have been arranged for the entire community and it is expected that it will easily be the largest ever held in Janesville.

Joint proclamation was issued this morning by Mayor Valentine and J. P. Cullen, president of the Chamber of Commerce, asking that the people attend the community service next Thursday morning.

The Blodgett mills has donated fifty sacks of pancake flour for the cause. The Sewell Cafe has volunteered to bake and send in for sale, some of the home made pies, which will no doubt be sold as quickly as possible.

Forty Years Ago

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Nov. 21, 1878.—Rev. Henry Sewell hasn't a very warm heart for tramps, owing to experiences of the past. He gave a tramp some supper, and the fellow seemed so grateful and pious that he took him to church. On returning home the stranger tossed to be allowed to stay all night, and was allowed to do so. Before daybreak he slipped out, taking with him the parson's shoes and stockings and other articles which sadly interfered with his making his toilet the next morning.

On Wednesday night the floor in the granary of Vincent Brothers, near Milton, gave way, precipitating several hundred bushels of oats and barley into the basement below. The fact was discovered Thursday morning, and after removing the grain two cows were found dead, having been smothered, and another was nearly dead. Much of the grain was more or less injured and the loss will amount to quite a sum.

The Veterans and Guards have received their vouchers from Madison, and as soon as the necessary papers are signed and sent back each company will receive $300 from the state treasury. The money will be here by Saturday.

Mistake Number 5

Parents who do not teach their children to save money and make deposits at the bank are making Mistake Number 5.

Many times parents have found their sons are better boys—that they take more interest in things worth while and are far more comfortable to the parents when they have a bank account of their own.

And the boy or girl who learns to handle money while young will nearly always pass those who do not get this training in the race for success.

Beware of Mistake Number 5. Let your children come to the bank frequently. They are always welcome.

FIVE FRIDAYS

"Bugs," he decided briefly; then, turning to Bopp and myself: "Gents, put me right. Do I or do I not coal at this station?"

"The lady has told you correctly," I assured him. "There is no coal in the house."

"And you're doing it, too?" He laughed sarcastically. "When I come here the old lady was pulling a prodie on the floor, and now the fat guy ain't eating anything. A bunch of dips all right."

"You had better go upstairs and change your clothes," said Lucile. "What will I change 'em into—a nickel plated wash boiler or a pair of diamond earrings?"

"I mean put on some dry things. Frank, you and he are about the same size. You'll lend him a suit of yours, won't you?"

Sure he would. He had to. When they were at the top of the stairs Bopp yelled down, "Monty, Mrs. Green wants you to come up."

I started, but Lucile stopped me. "Ask her what she wants."

In a minute Bopp had the answer. "She says she isn't going to sleep until she sees her beautiful friend Monty. If he doesn't come up she'll come down."

Lucile, blushing, went up to explain to her mother that her request was impossible. From behind the closed door of Mrs. Green's room there issued sounds of an argument supplemented by weeping.

Eventually Lucile came to the top of the stairs and called, "Monty!"

How different that name sounded when she used it! I bounded up the stairs. When I saw "bounded" I mean it. It was the first time that I had done anything like that in years.

Lucile stood leaning over the banister, perplexed and troubled. Her face flushed and her hair becomingly disarranged, as if she had been engaged in a physical contest of some sort. I stopped on the stairs below her.

"The blessed damsel leaned out from the gold bar of heaven," I quoted.

"Don't be silly," she said in a tone of voice that told me she liked it. "I have to ask you a bread-and-butter question."

"All right," I commanded. "Shoot." "Would you mind very much kissing a lady who is not as young as she was once?"

"Would I mind?" I said, taking her hands. "I've been thinking of nothing else for two years."

"I meant," disengaging her hands gently, "would you mind kissing mother good night? She is acting very peculiarly this evening, as you know, and she says she won't go to sleep until you kiss her."

I was touched at the old lady's fondness for me. We went in. She was lying tucked up in bed, with a nightcap clad firmly under her chin.

"Lucile made me come to bed," Mrs. Green volunteered, her bright eyes snapping with wakefulness. "It's all nonsense. Don't wanna be in bed. I wanna get up and go somewhere with you and eat."

"There, there," said Lucile, "the doctor says not to eat anything."

"Yes," snapped her mother, "and I'll bet he had just had his dinner when he said it. I know a place to eat over in town, beautiful Blainey—lots of fine steaks, chops and roasts' beef. Guess I'll get up."

She started to throw back the covers, but Lucile forcibly restrained her. "You said you would go to sleep if I brought Mr. Blainey in to see you," she said.

The old lady eyed me with evident suspicion. "Is he going to kiss me good night?" she demanded.

I assured her that I was there for no other purpose. "A right," she sighed; "then I'll go to sleep."

And she did, or at least we didn't hear another sound from her that evening.

When we left the room and closed the door softly Lucile put her hand on my arm and said: "Thanks, Monty. It was awfully silly, but I didn't know how else to quiet her. You won't think anything of it, will you?"

"Of course not. It's all in the family anyhow, or if it isn't I wish it were." I hazarded, emboldened by the pressure on my arm. For the moment I could not have been any happier if I had been fed.

After awhile the telephone man came downstairs in a suit of Bopp's clothes—light flannel trousers, outing shoes.

"Is he going to kiss me good night?" she demanded.

fancy shirt, soft collar, tie and blue serge coat. The tags fitted him remarkably well, and except for a remarkable line of conversation the man did not seem ill suited to the clothes. At any rate, I liked him better than I did Bopp.

What to do with him seemed to be puzzling Lucile. It didn't seem right to ask him to go out in the kitchen and drink water all by himself, and there was no other place to put him unless he stayed in the living room with us. Before she could decide one way or the other he seated himself comfortably and proceeded to entertain us with considerable conversation about himself.

"I ain't a Rubie," he volunteered, "I've been near enough Fifth avenue to know good clothes when I see 'em, and I have to admit that Mr. Bopp is a swell dresser. I only work here in the summer time. In the winter I stick around within sight of the statue of Liberty. I'm a wire tapper."

"A wire tapper?" repeated Bopp. "Isn't a wire tapper a sort of crook?"

"Not compared to a burglar. Wire tapping is just high finance."

His name, it appeared, was Harold Kent. He was married, was a Socialist in feeling if not in theory, had been a jockey, a tont, a telegraph operator, and hoped to learn to fly an aeroplane. Otherwise his was an uneventful history.

All the time I was listening my mind was occupied with trying to account for the thrill which had jelled me when I had taken Lucile's hands in mine at the top of the staircase. I decided to put my fortunes to the test. I would sit up until Bopp went to bed and then ask her to marry me.

Kent, the telephone man, retired first. "I think I'll sit up awhile," I said, stealing a look at Lucile and hoping that she would comprehend my intention.

"If you're going to sit up I'll stick," said Bopp, with Machiavellian cordiality. "I'll split a gallon of water with you."

There we sat, and we drank glass after glass of water until 11 o'clock. Then Lucile decided to retire and spoiled the whole game.

"I guess I'll turn in now, too," I suggested tentatively, hoping at least that I would get a chance to speak to her on the stairs.

But no. Bopp developed a sudden fondness for my society and accompanied me to my room and sat on my bed for awhile talking about affairs theoretical, assuming that I was interested in them, which I was not.

When he finally departed the house was dark and the wind of the storm made unearthly noises around the caves. I was more tired than I remembered to have been for years, but not sleepy. I don't know whether it was actual hunger or merely the idea that I had not eaten anything for forty-eight hours that haunted me. At any rate, every time that I closed my eyes I'd have a vision of those dog biscuits.

I might just as well have pictured a chocolate cake or a doughnut to myself; but, no—it was a dog biscuit.

After an hour or so of that kind of torture I at last decided to satisfy my fool imagination by showing it a dog biscuit in the life and proving that it was not desirable at all. That was the only reason that I went downstairs.

It was rather ticklish business roaming around a strange house wearing no other padding than a suit of pajamas. I banged my shins unmercifully against several hundred pieces of furniture, but I toned my remarks thereat to a pitch below the howling of the storm. An occasional flash of lightning helped me momentarily from time to time, but left me floundering in the intervals.

Finally in the kitchen, I groped my way to the shelf, and the box of dog biscuits was in my hands. Furtively I took one out, fondled it and sniffed it. Being alone there with that unprotected dog biscuit was too much for my moral courage. I decided to throw honor to the winds. There was so much wind and so little honor that no one would notice it.

I set my teeth in the dog biscuit! Suddenly there was a sound on the stairway. I listened intently—the creaking of a stair!

Who could it be? Possibly it was Kent, the ex-wire tapper. His early training might have proved too much for him and he had decided to loot the place and make his escape. I made up my mind to behave valiantly and grasped a dog biscuit firmly in one hand, determined to sell my life as dearly as was consistent with the high cost of living. The box containing the rest of the biscuit I put back on the shelf and crouched behind the stove, ready to spring at the intruder unawares as soon as he entered.

I had one of those flashes of insane bravery which is nine-tenths fear when I saw the light of a pocket lantern struggling along the wall at the foot of the stairs. I jumped four feet straight up in the air when something wet touched the sole of my bare foot which was extended behind me. My exclamation was drowned in a crash of thunder. Burglar or no burglar, I was about to run to him for protection from that clammy thing which had touched me when a second flash of lightning showed me—oh, horrors! It was Tootles frisking around my feet.

Dinner Stories

A soldier of the signal corps wrote a letter in the "Y," using three sheets of paper. One of them was a Y. M. C. A. sheet, another was a K. of C. sheet, and the third was a Jewish Welfare Board paper. He used a K. of C. envelope for the whole and bought a stamp at the desk of the Y. M. C. A. Can you beat that for a cosmopolitan message?

A colored unit was moving up to take its place in the line of battle. It was early morning, and daylight had not yet begun to break.

"Hey, sergeant," came a voice from over in the brush to the left; "when we all go in to find them Boches?"

"Never you mind, child; you all gonna find plenty of them things 'fore long."

"Well, I sho hope so, sergeant," came the voice. "If I don't get rid of this mean feeling 'fore long I's gwine to carve up on the mess sergeant, sho?"—The Stars and Stripes.

"I love the country," said the young city man on vacation, "because everything smells of freshness."

"Perhaps it does in some parts,"

Danger Follows Grip

Rebuilding Health After Any Illness Getting Well Means Gaining Strength—A Wholesome Tonic

The getting-well stage of grip, pneumonia or other illness is the most dangerous of all because the body, weakened by the disease, is wide open to attacks of other lurking germs.

That is why all the organs of the body must be kept in their best working order, not only to drive out the poison left by the disease, but that the patient shall regain strength as soon as possible to avoid further attacks resulting from the poisons in the system.

As a means toward good health after any illness Father John's Medicine builds up the body because it is all pure wholesome nourishment and free from opium, morphine, chloroform or other poisonous drugs or alcohol. Father John's Medicine has had 60 years' success for colds and throat troubles, coughs and sore throats, and as a tonic and body builder.

Proof:—One of the best known professional men in New York (his name will be given on request) says:—"After an acute attack of typhoid pneumonia, I had a racking cough and lost twenty pounds in eleven days. I never was so completely run down in my life. I was about to go to a hospital when I began to take Father John's Medicine, which after I had taken it faithfully, restored me to sound health. I regained flesh that I had lost and have since been as well as ever in my life. I have since learned that my physician has been in the habit of prescribing Father John's Medicine in such cases."

Water Hyacinth Has Value.

The water hyacinth, which so rapidly fills up certain streams, is found to have a high value as a fertilizer.

On account of the large amount of water the green plant contains the material is partially dried before slacking and after becoming well rotted it proves to have about the same composition as farmyard manure, except that it is richer in potash.

HUN KINGS JOIN "DOWN-AND-OUT" CLUB

Ten days after the signing of the armistice there was not a king left.

One Woman's Way

By EDNA ROSSITER

Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.

Walter Lane had two main thoughts in his mind—his mother and the bank. His mother he had placed with an old spinster relative, in another state, providing for her as best he might out of a stunted salary. The bank was his prison place from eight in the morning until six in the evening. He had never worked anywhere else, and his owner, John Burt, had seen to it that he never got any advancement.

Lane was too artless and modest to realize his own worth. He did all the bookkeeping for the bank and was messenger, teller, cashier and general utility man. His employer had bought out the bank by investing a legacy left him by his father. His sister, Eunice, had also been left a snug little sum. She had high ambitions in the musical line. She had come to the city to cultivate her voice, and, just at a time when her development gave her hope and promise, it failed her.

One day she appeared at Glenview and informed her brother that her money was gone, her ambitions crushed and asked that he give her employment.

"There is no need of further help," he declared. "But if you can live on six dollars a week I'll get a typewriter and give you something to do. Hereafter we have written our letters by hand, but it might pay us to keep a little closer up to date."

Eunice Burt was submissive to the exacting requirements of her miserly brother. She was interested in Walter Lane the first time she met him. He was a victim of the rigorous business system of her brother, and somehow his docility and mute acceptance of fate consoled Eunice and made her feel companionable. It was something of a relief to forget the ardent devotee of music.

Eunice grew to like this strangely silent, courteous and really good-looking young man. To Lane she was a glowing incident in a hitherto dull and preoccupied life. When he had to work overtime she almost invariably insisted on helping him, and John Burt rubbed his thin, grasping hands with satisfaction as he contemplated how his system was developing another willing slave, who would work cheap and accept the pittance awarded uncomplainingly.

One morning Lane came down to the bank in an evident state of distress. He hurried into the office of his employer with a blanched face and a tremor in his voice, as he said:

"Mr. Burt, I shall have to leave you for a week, possibly for two."

"How's that?" snapped the banker sharply, who never gave so much as a day's vacation to an employee.

"Yes, sir," flustered on Lane. "My poor old mother has been ill, and her physician has telegraphed that an operation only may save the life so precious to me. My place is at her side."

"Of course you will lose your pay while you are absent," observed Burt. "I don't mind that, Mr. Burt. I have less than fifty dollars and the operation will cost two hundred. Will you advance me that amount, and you can repay it by holding out half of my salary each week."

"Can't do that," promptly answered Burt. "It would establish a precedent and it's totally against my business principles."

Lane could scarcely credit his senses, but Burt left the bank at once. He returned at noon. Eunice, to whom Lane had imparted his story, greeted her brother coldly. "Mr. Lane has gone to his mother," she said, "and left you this note."

Burt perused its brief contents and uttered a ferocious snarl. "Sneak-baited! Felony!" he shouted. "The man has deliberately stolen two hundred dollars and has decamped."

"You know better," said Eunice. "I'll get a warrant out for him at once," stormed Burt. "I'll never shield a criminal." "He is no criminal," championed Eunice, "and you are wicked to drive the poor, distracted man to such straits."

"Then he'll at once give me a note for double the amount taken." "He will do neither," dissented Eunice. "Do you know what I have done to offset your appalling meanness? I have taken ten thousand dollars of your negotiable bonds and I have hidden them. Take one step to trouble Walter Lane amid his sore troubles, and I will burn them up."

John Burt was dazed. He stared stupefied at this determined woman. "Why, you must be in love with the man," he sneered. "If I am he is worthy of it," retorted Eunice. "Something more: I have found among your papers a codicil to the will, which you have suppressed. It gives me ten thousand dollars, which you have appropriated and invested in this business. Now, then, you will restore it to me, or both Walter Lane and myself leave you to your own devices, or you turn over to me my rightful interest in the business and make Mr. Lane a real cashier, at a real salary."

Yes, Walter Lane was worthy of her love. He never knew the details of the wonderful change in his fortunes when he returned, his mother given a new lease of life. He only knew that he had won a loving, loyal wife, who was a blessing to him all those later days of peace and happiness.

Lots Better.

It's a damned sight better to be able to laugh at life than to have it laugh at you.—Baltimore Sun.
